This will be an exploration of the innate wisdom and potency of the living human through lecture and hands-on experiences. We will address perspectives of balanced ligamentous and balanced membranous tension with an emphasis on the structure and function of the upper extremity.

Our goal is to develop a working understanding of the self-correcting mechanism, utilizing principles elucidated by William G. Sutherland, DO and passed down to us by our mentor Anne Wales, DO. We will also discuss and demonstrate applications of this understanding to facilitate the powers within the patient's body. Physicians with all levels of experience will gain something from this weekend.

Come share this learning opportunity in a friendly, accessible and beautiful setting.

Support the Anne L. Wales, DO Scholarship Fund:

The Anne L. Wales, DO Fund (ALWF) is guided by the vision of Dr. Wales to promote and disseminate the teachings of Dr. Sutherland, in both his Cranial Concept and in the principles of applied Osteopathy he received from A.T. Still. Dr. Wales founded ASSSG in November 1986. The ALWF honors in gratitude her life's work. The ALWF Scholarships stimulate individual study of the Science of Osteopathy, financially support osteopathic students, interns and residents in formal study and honor the generosity of Dr. Wales in the support, teaching and guidance given to her students.

Course Prerequisites: Osteopathy and Osteopathy in the Cranial Field are part of the practice of medicine. The ASSSG's course is designed to teach the integration of Sutherland's techniques into the practice of medicine. This course assumes a strong background of education and training in the biomedical sciences and in the clinical observation and treatment of pathology in patients. In order for students to learn this scope of practice in a comprehensive fashion and in order for them to apply this form of practice in a manner that is both safe and appropriate, it is crucial that they have received or be in the process of acquiring a broad and comprehensive level of medical educational training. Such training should include two years of didactic training in the basic and clinical biomedical sciences as taught in accredited (AOA, COCA or LCME) medical and ADA accredited dental schools. Such training should also include three years of intensive training in approved clinical teaching settings, including extensive training in hospital settings where students are exposed to addressing the diagnosis and treatment of patients who manifest a broad range both in type and severity of clinical pathology. This is the level of education and training that leads to a license for the unlimited scope and practice of medicine, as defined by medical licensing boards in each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. Applicants who are graduates of osteopathic educational programs outside the United States who practice and reside outside the United States and who either possess unlimited licensure for the practice of medicine or are members in good standing of a national osteopathic registry or the appropriate governmental licensing authority in their own country will be considered for admission to this course on a case-by-case basis. Spaces for such applicants are extremely limited.
